

The first level of court review is circuit court review. There is then an automatic right to appeal to the Virginia Court of Appeals. The next level of court review is to the Virginia Supreme Court, but that review must be granted by petition and is not automatic.

The Virginia Administrative Process Act addresses court review of administrative decisions at Va. Code §2.2-4025 through Va. Code §2.2-4030. Part 2A of the Rules of the Virginia Supreme Court addresses appeals pursuant to the Administrative Process Act.
