A Note about Assistive Technology and Assistive Technology Services: Assistive Technology is defined differently by DMAS and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA – Part C). The Part C definitions are listed below. DMAS reimburses for Assistive Technology devices using DMAS enrolled Durable Medical Equipment providers. Services provided by EI practitioners which facilitate the use of Assistive Technology Devices are reimbursed as EI services. AT related services are reimbursed as such using the procedure codes that correspond to the treating provider's license, certification within their scope of practice.

Assistive technology device - Any item, piece of equipment or product system, whether acquired commercially off the shelf, modified, or customized, that is used to increase, maintain, or improve functional capabilities of children with disabilities. The term does not include a medical device that is surgically implanted, including cochlear implants, or the optimization (e.g., mapping), maintenance or replacement of that device

Assistive technology services - Any service that directly assists a child with a disability in the selection, acquisition, or use of an assistive technology device. Assistive technology services include:

- The assessment of the needs of a child with a disability, including a functional assessment of the child in the child's customary environment;
- Purchasing, leasing or otherwise providing for the acquisition of assistive technology devices by children with disabilities;
- Selecting, designing, fitting, customizing, adapting, applying, maintaining, repairing or replacing assistive technology devices;
- Coordinating and using other therapies, interventions, supports or services with assistive technology devices, such as those associated with existing education and rehabilitation plans and programs;
- Training or technical assistance for a child with disabilities, that child's family, other caregivers or service providers on the use of assistive technology determined to be appropriate; and
